

Did you know...

every two hours someone in Australia will undergo an amputation as a result of diabetes-related foot disease? Did you also know that diabetes-related foot disease receives less than 0.2% of the total diabetes research funded in Australia?

For a little known disease, the statistics are confronting. But it does make you stop and think about the reasons why, and leads to one very important question. What can and should we do to end avoidable amputations within a generation?

Diabetic Foot Australia, in partnership with La Trobe University has developed a national survey with the aim to gather and refine unanswered research questions to develop the national 'Top 10' diabetes-related foot health and disease research priorities in Australia.

Tell us what research would help diabetes FEET!

And we need your valuable thoughts & ideas

We need your voice

From people at risk of or living with diabetes-related foot disease and their carers

From health professionals involved in the care of people at risk of or with diabetes-related foot disease

From researchers, academics, peak bodies and organisations involved with diabetes-related foot disease

What's involved?

Just 30 minutes of your time to complete 3 online surveys over 3 months!

ROUND 1

TELL US THE QUESTIONS YOU'D LIKE ANSWERED BY RESEARCH

We'd like to find out what's important to you, based on your own experiences. This could include topics from living with, assessment, diagnosis, to treatment of diabetes-related foot disease.

ROUND 2

CHOOSE THE QUESTIONS THAT MATTER THE MOST TO YOU

From survey one, we'll then provide a full list of the 'big' questions found and ask you to highlight what questions matter to you the most.

ROUND 3

TOP TEN

RANK THE QUESTIONS TO HELP BUILD THE NATIONAL PRIORITIES

From survey two, we'll then provide a list of top ten questions. All participants will then rank those top ten to help us determine the overall national diabetes-related foot disease research priorities.

FAQ'S

CAN I JOIN IN A LATER ROUND?

We need participants for all three rounds, so make sure to get in quick to join survey one.

WHAT HAPPENS WITH THE RESULTS?

We let the participants know a summary of the results prior to Round 2 and Round 3 starting. A final publication will then be released to showcase the priority national research questions.

WHAT ABOUT MY PRIVACY?

We can't identify you from your answers and only require an email address to send through your survey 2 and 3 details.
